What's New in the CRMworx?

CRMworx is a robust, robust, robust contact manager. A contact manager, um, I'm not sure if you've used something like CRM, but CRMworx is pretty robust, but it does many of the things that CRM is good at, and does it well. But it's a contact manager where everything is relational, so it does address the issue of, say, you just couldn't send a message to John Smith and it has to look like it's going to John Smith. It actually looks like that, not by going to your system, but the address book of your system -- sort of have to be dealt with relationally, and you can't send something to Jane Doe and have it go to John Doe. With CRM, you just drop it in and it just goes to John Doe and just goes to Jane Doe, which is great. The problem is, with CRM, that you can't actually do that. The settings for the addresses that you use is the same for everyone, so you can't really address a particular person. CRMworx does let you do that. CRMworx does allow you to create emails and send them from addresses that look like you, instead of from your email. It is addressable. You can look up a particular customer and say, "What's their name? What's their address?" and it actually gives you that. So one thing that you might not be so excited about is that it does not allow you to create proposals, but it does have a lot of features that will help you in that regard. So if you are interested in changing the language from English to German, you can do that, and you can create agreements that look much more formal if you'd like. So if you don't have a lot of contacts, CRMworx will allow you to create contacts with less than a dozen of people, or more than a dozen, depending on the features that you purchase. And there are three levels of features that you can purchase. The first one is the Standard, which is the one that will give you the ability to create contacts and the ability to have, create emails and send them, add to your records, create requests. It will, however, not allow you to create proposals, for example. The next one, the Standard Plus, will allow you to create proposals, does not allow you to create recurring receipts, for example, will not allow you to create have a multiple
