Q: mysql.connector and pymysql I'm trying to test pymysql in a python script and in order to use it inside a django app. I have installed in my virtual environment all the packages involved (pymysql, mysql-connector) and I have the file declared in my settings.py file: DATABASES = { 'default': { 'ENGINE': 'django.db.backends.mysql', 'NAME': 'mydb', 'USER': 'root', 'PASSWORD': '123', 'HOST': 'localhost', 'PORT': '3306' } } I have also tried by simply inserting it inside the file: DATABASES = { 'default': { 'ENGINE': 'mysql.connector', 'NAME': 'mydb', 'USER': 'root', 'PASSWORD': '123', 'HOST': 'localhost', 'PORT': '3306' } } and I got that error: NameError: name 'connector' is not defined A: I was also having this issue. This was caused by the fact that the mysql-connector plugin is not installed in the python venv. Use this PIP command to install it pip install mysql-connector This invention relates to apparatus for relieving twist or distortion in a window sash when the sash is moved into its closed position as the sash is being closed. It is a well known problem to provide a window having the capability of being opened and closed, with such windows having different height dimensions. More specifically, a conventional window may have a dimension of one to six inches, and this dimension may be varied simply by varying the length of the overall structure of the window. It is also known to provide casement windows which have a vertical pivot joint with an upstanding sash being movable between a closed position adjacent the window frame and an open position in which

[Perioperative management in the inpatient geriatric long-term care facility in Germany: a concept]. This article provides a description of the perioperative management in in-hospital long-term care facilities. Primary target is the use of evidence-based guidelines and practical recommendations in order to improve care quality and patient safety. Geriatric long-term care facilities (LTCFs) play an essential role in the care of the frail elderly. Geriatric surgical practice is part of the LTCF process. It was given the highest priority within the European care system, by the EPOS (Europe OnLine Services) Project. Perioperative care in geriatric LTCFs is unique. Its specificity is due to the median age of patients admitted and their dominant geriatric medical condition. Geriatric LTCFs require a special perioperative management. The LTCF model of care for perioperative management is characterised by: (1) geriatric (2) inpatient (3) acute-care (4) surgical. In Germany the geriatric LTCF is introduced and operated by hospitals. Despite a high number of LTCFs in the country, a harmonisation of care process is missing. An effective collaboration between participating centres on the regional, state and national level is missing. The perioperative management in the geriatric LTCF is different from that in a traditional acute hospital setting. Perioperative care is a challenge for geriatric physicians. A model for perioperative care in the geriatric LTCF, which is based on evidence-based guidelines and practical recommendations is proposed. Ned Stark Based on the novel by George R.R. Martin Cast: Ian McShane, Robert Forster, Peter Dinklage, Lena Headey, Richard Madden, John Bradley, Ewen Bremner, Stephen Payne First-time writer-director Alan Taylor pulls a fast one on viewers with his new take on the epic story of Robert Stark (Ian McShane) and the Wars of the Roses, playing out across three timeframes. In a smart move, the show's beginning is entirely silent. As a child, Stark is tormented and whipped by his father (Peter Dinklage), while his mother (Lena Headey) gives him as much milk and affection as her own body can withstand, living up to the show's all-knowing, child-like narrator. Fast forward to a
