Understanding image resolution When you open an image, you may notice that it is too small to see all the details. For example, you may be able to recognize only the logo in the photo. The image is _skewed._ It's unclear that what the image is supposed to be. The image may also not fill your screen, or it may be the wrong resolution. The resolution of an image is its quality — the number of pixels it uses to display its contents. A higher resolution means that more information is included in the image. The resolution of an image can affect the size of the file it uses. You can give it a higher or lower resolution. Photoshop lets you change the resolution of an image when you save it. Lower the resolution to get a smaller file with fewer pixels. Figure 12-2 shows a frame of dogs enjoying the outdoors. Notice the reflections off the pond. You can see the layers on the image. If you decrease the resolution of this image, you can still see the reflections and the layers, but now they are blurred. Figure 12-2: The lower the resolution, the blurrier the image. | --- | --- Probiotics in the prevention and treatment of necrotizing enterocolitis. Necrotizing enterocolitis (NEC) is an intestinal inflammatory disease, typically occurring in the premature infant, which is the leading cause of death and morbidity in neonatal intensive care units. The exact pathogenesis of NEC remains to be defined, but various risk factors have been identified. Probiotics are defined as live microorganisms that when administered in adequate amounts confer a health benefit on the host. Some observational trials have suggested that the administration of probiotics was associated with a significant reduction in NEC. However, several randomized, controlled trials have shown no beneficial effect of probiotics in the prevention or treatment of NEC. The safety of probiotics in infants and adults, combined with a thorough understanding of the clinical situation and available therapies, should dictate the use of probiotics in such patients.Siena second half The Siena men's basketball squad picked up an 87-68 victory over Seattle Pacific University in the opening round of the MAAC Tournament. Siena was led by 15 points from junior guard Aaron Gipson, 14 points from senior guard Steven Hyman and 12 points from fellow sophomore point guard Tyrone Wallace. Sophomore forward James Nunnally added 11 points. Senior forward Ben Richardson contributed eight points. Hyman was outstanding, scoring a career-high 13 points, including a pair of

We have to play for the whole game and we need to fight through it and through the tougher times and we're playing tough right now. We need to continue to play well and we want to go to the next round." Siena led 33-31 at the break thanks to a 22-12 advantage in points off turnovers in the first 20 minutes. However, the Cougars outscored the Saints 17-9 in the second half to pull away. "We try to never let them get past 20," said Gipson, who was 4 of 7 from the field and 6
