Last Day of Summer (Part 1) Saturday was cool. We didn't get over 100, and it was a nice, pleasant day. That meant we could have our barbecue. We went to the American Legion Hall and ate, at the picnic tables. A guy from the high school was there, and he remembered me. We talked about graduation. He liked me when I was in high school. He said he was going to college on a tennis scholarship, but he has a little wife and kids now. Oh well, we were teenagers in high school, too. Later, we went to a nearby park and played catch with a pop bottle. By the time you guys are reading this, I will probably have played catch with one of you. No comments: Post a Comment Looking For Something? About Me I am a retired public high school math teacher from Washington, DC. I used to love playing catch with my students, but that was at a time when we had few, if any, adults in our lives. I still enjoyed it, though. I miss that, and I miss the days when I had to knock the catcher's mitt out of his hand to put him out. I also used to play street hockey in the late 1940s, as did many of my students. As I grew older, I played in my driveway, usually on Saturdays or Sundays. As I played, I noticed how much faster, stronger, and more skillful my students became. My students used to look up to me, and I was happy to be able to give them a taste of the game I had played. I played with some of them after they graduated from high school. We enjoyed playing and cheered for each other. I did not play for much of a decade after that. It is more fun
