Enhanced Player Instincts Players have more control over the game, making them feel more connected with the action. For example, they will feel better able to react to changing situations, making them more aware of where they are on the pitch and their surroundings. 4K Ultra HD and HDR Support FIFA 22 makes the most of the best video and graphics technologies in place today, delivering a wide screen experience that will be even more immersive on 4K Ultra HD systems. They will also enjoy a great visual experience on all Xbox One S consoles thanks to the upgraded HDR settings. Playable Broadcaster Options FIFA broadcasts and championship competitions feature deeper broadcaster options which will add more commentary and increase interactivity. The fan experience is also enhanced with in-depth presentation and greater context around the game. Aurie and Mannequin Mode New broadcast packages include the Aurie Format, which provides commentary on a single player and replays from the match in one-on-one live commentary. Players can also interact with the commentator via the Mannequin mode. New Channels for 360° Shot Impact Showcasing the immersive qualities of FIFA's new broadcast vision, 360° Shot Impact is available in all match channels, from the channel's start to the medal ceremony. Themed Match Live from the Championship All the action from the football season takes place on screen, with cameras following both home and away teams from the beginning of the season through to the end. A New Live Commentary Option for Broadcasts Broadcasters and football clubs working with FIFA will benefit from a new camera mode, which allows for real time, true-to-life commentary in the middle of the action for a better experience. The animated text will also appear to be real when compared with previous FIFA games. Pricing and Availability FIFA 22 is now available on Xbox One and will be available on PlayStation 4 and Windows PC on October 2, 2016. Pricing: Xbox One: £69.99 ($99.99, €89.99) PlayStation 4: £69.99 ($99.99, €89.99) Windows PC: £29.99 ($49.99, €39.99) Content on this page comes directly from press releases and fact sheets provided by publishers and developers and

Fifa 22 Features Key:

Become the manager of your own club in career mode and choose between “elite” and “promotion”. Become a football pro again and be the best player on the field as you face the dilemma of faith versus reward. DIAMOND BALL

The hardest and most realistic ball ever to enjoy in a football video game.

Key features:

- Full cover and swing control • Precise ball trajectory • 2048 unique textures

In FIFA 22, FIFA's 2013 Introducing Feature, the FIFA ball will significantly improve the authentic feel of the game. The ball features full cover and swing control as you spin, dive and spike the ball past your opponent. The ball also features full responsiveness and a new smart ball line algorithm that adaptively aligns itself with the more responsive players on the pitch. This year, the FIFA ball will create a bigger, more dynamic, and more atmospheric gameplay experience

BIG PLAYER X-RAYS

Zoom and control your shot with greater precision on the pitch like never before. - To change the effect, you can use the customisation tools like: Scorched Eagle effect Big banners out

Key features:

- 5X zoom in on pitch - Customise unique to your player with unique X-Rays - Customise Player and Formation - Change Shot effects with customisable X-Ray effects - Can replace Player sign - Footwear Players also come complete with new Blister Covers for realistic skin simulation. These polygon based covers also allow you to create complete custom players, or to recolor your existing player's fabrications. The Blister Covers add to the player's look and make the player more complete. With boots and cleats, the player is complete. The player has been developed to complement the new features of the FIFA ball, as well as to bring more realism to the gameplay, making those in-game moments infinitely more intense.

Build and develop the ultimate team of FIFA players, then compete in leagues to earn cards which you can add to your team, upgrade your players, and bring your team to glorious victory. With all new gameplay that gives players full control and freedom to make their own opportunities through dozens of new approaches to attacking, defending, and all of the core components of play. Development In June 2015 EA Sports announced that EA Vancouver was to be the studio responsible for bringing FIFA to the next-generation console, but the studio was closed before the game was released. The studio was to be located in Burnaby, British Columbia. Development began in Fall 2011 with a large part of the development team being transferred from EA Canada. During 2014, the company's co-chief executive officer Andrew Wilson said in an interview that the main goal was to "create an emotion for the game that would make players feel like it's theirs, that they built and that it was theirs to play". Marketing In February 2012, EA re-launched the official FIFA Twitter account with FIFA 22 on the way. One of the accounts tweets that the "beautiful and complex artificial intelligence technology... will cause your teammates to make decisions like never before." FIFA 19 EA Sports released a trailer showing off the 2012 edition of the game. It was later revealed that the game would be released on October 10, 2012. FIFA 19 was released on October 10, 2012 in North America and October 13, 2012 in Europe. It features a new feature called "Fight for Glory", which is where players fight for their club's chance at the title through a series of knockout matches. FIFA 20 On October 26, 2017, EA Sports released a trailer announcing the release of FIFA 20 on October 4, 2018. It was also announced in the same trailer that the game would feature multi-platform play across the Xbox One, Xbox One X, PlayStation 4, Nintendo Switch and PC. Reception FIFA 19 IGN, GameSpot, and Game Informer all gave FIFA 19 a score of 9 out of 10, praising its gameplay but criticized the game's presentation. FIFA 19 was the highest-grossing video game of the year in North America. It debuted at number one in the UK during the week ending December 1, 2017. On release, FIFA 19 sold over 2 million units in just three days in the UK, beating FIFA 18 to become the third fastest-selling game in UK
