I have a rails application and I use Squeel for querying the DB. Now I'd like to use it with SQLite. Is there any Gem or a wrapper I can use? A: I suggest to use SQLCipher You can download and use it from here Beware of sqlite_version you need to have the correct version and be confident with the code and the sqlite version If you want to make your app a real database you must put the encryption in its beginning in your config/environments/development.rb

```
SQLCipher.configure(File.join(Rails.root, "config", "database.yml"), File.join(Rails.root, "config", "encrypt.cfg"))

And in your config/database.yml you must have the real path development: adapter: SQLCipher database: pool: 5 username: password: host: localhost port: 889 timeout: 5000 I hope this help you. A: You should be able to wrap db/schema.rb with a SQLCipher wrapper. There's a good introduction of it at Ruby Quiz. A: I know it's an old question, but if you're reading this, and you're not using SQLite3, I suggest you take a look at SQLite3 instead. It's faster, and with SQLCipher, you can encrypt your db, which can be very useful for applications. To set up everything: Download the Sqlect gem from the github
