What's new:

Deploy in-game machinima that showcases details of your fights. If your combat has undergone any significant changes, please do not use it and place it in the "Drafts" folder. For example, creating a rare item or upgrading your weapon with a new weapon is something that's reasonable to perform. However, creating a new class, performing a full-body transformation, or bringing out a battle skill that hasn't been used for a long period of time is something that's not okay. You can use a created machinima when the update is released.

Battle Scene [PC]A battle scene where a series of blows from multiple weapons are exchanged. *

Increased the number of frames per second during a move when a player moves around. *

Swing attack and defense characters are displayed in the air, allowing them to feel as if they are in the midst of the fight. *

In addition to blocking the play arrow, and making it possible to dodge with the central button, the player can dodge while moving around. [Screen Resolution Setting]

You can set whether the scene is displayed in a particular resolution on the [Screen Resolution Setting] of [Gamepad Setting].

Conversation *

Added a function where you can create a conversation with another player who has appointed you as a friend. *

For increased security, when you're playing with a friend, you can both have [History] enabled on your party mates.

Enhancements *

Player-created answers can be given to ordinary online comments. *

When changing to a new map, the current arena will automatically be deleted, and the current map will be stored.

Rewards For the purpose of further updates and with the creator's cooperation, the creator can receive some rewards, such as a title, title access, bonus items, or a command item. The Reward button will display when the reward has been accomplished. Note * For the creator, we are asking that you don't perform any special movements or tricks in the battle scene. * For the purpose of describing the battle scene, all battles will be stored in the [History] even if they are destroyed, so please do not perform any movements or tricks. > Also, if you delete a machinima within the time limit, the only information that can be saved for it is the 3D data, so we have deleted as many machinima as possible and only saved the ones that

Q: Which enthalpy equation is applicable in this case? The unit of measurement of $\Delta_c p$ in this case is $\text{J}/(\text{mol}\cdot\text{K})$ and the unit of $\Delta_c v$ is $\text{J}/(\text{mol}\cdot\text{K})$. I think $\Delta_r H$ applies but $\Delta_c v$ should be independent of reaction temp in this case. A: hope it makes it clear that the enthalpy of reaction is not independent of temperature and the entropy of reaction is always increasing. Therefore, the enthalpy of reaction will depend on temperature. So, the enthalpy of reaction is
