When a microprocessor is configured for fast operation in comparison to memory, it is said to be high-speed (or good-speed, or high-frequency). Â . However, at times, for various reasons, software may need to slow down at times."We must live with this blackness. Blackness is in our DNA." Those are the words from a white author speaking of someone of color. In a way, those words are the essence of race relations in the USA. Racism is embedded in our culture, as it is in most of the western world. This is not surprising given that we are a culture of white males who insist on bringing the "n word" into anything that we do. This is the real problem at the root of the world's problems. This is the real reason that it is nearly impossible to get anyone to acknowledge the existence of black people, except as props and decoration. Race relations in the USA are currently a hot button issue. George Zimmerman was acquitted of the murder of Trayvon Martin and the judge found the prosecutor to be not guilty of misconduct. The verdict was controversial and, although there are those who deny it, the case has real racial undertones. The resulting publicity caused Obama to re-evaluate this position. He is now quite clearly saying that the verdict was a result of George Zimmerman being "white" and Trayvon Martin being "black." Why isn't he saying that the verdict was racially based? After all, it was a trial in the state of Florida and the race of the killer and the victim are the real root of the problem. This is because Obama has a problem. The problem is that he is identifying race without identifying the people who are identified with their race. By doing that, he is making this a matter of black people against whites. The real problem is that he is making this a matter of blacks against the white. The real problem is that the real root of the problem is the white. That is because we are a culture of white males who insist on bringing their superiority to the rest of the world. This superiority, coupled with the feelings of victimization by blacks, leads to the conclusion that a man of color has to be an aggressive, violent and evil person, at least most of the time. The real root of the problem is the white man who re-defines the rules of society to include himself and deny his brothers and sisters. The real problem is the white man who considers his

I know that Objects that implement the Cloneable interface can be cloned; however, what about Serializable objects? What exactly does "cloning" a Serializable object mean, and how does it differ from an non-Serializable object? A: A clone is a new version of an object. Cloning an object usually means you want to operate on a copy of that object, because any modification made to the original affects the copy. Serialization is a process by which data is sent between computers, but that's what it does. Serialization tends to save the data in binary format, without any interpretation, in that sense it does not convert the object into any form of code, just data. It does that through a system called a StreamWriter, which makes a binary file that contains the object. A:

Serializable is for "data" transfer. Cloneable is for "code" transfer. Data is more general, while code is narrower. See the documentation for java.io.Serializable and java.lang.Cloneable for more detail. A: Serialization is for only data transfer between two processes or machines Clone is for object copying Also Serializable can be used for saving and reading an object state. See more details at the Serializable -3- to the list of charged offenses in the original indictment. Therefore, the district court did not abuse its discretion when it revoked Coates
