Run, Doodleguy! (Updated 2022)

- Woo! Woo! - Muh! Muh! - Sound of flapping in an attempt to fly but somehow flaps uselessly about The sound of a former human coming down the hill and landing Yep, human. The second he hits the ground, he starts jumping like a little kid. He hops, he squats, he runs, he does a few other random moves but is always trying to run. How did he even get onto this surface? So fast! His cleverly named shoes, which he runs in, do the running for him. This means his feet hit the ground at a speed determined by the game. If the game was fast, the feet would hit the ground at a faster speed. If the game was slow, the feet would hit the ground at a slower speed. This also means the game runs at a constant speed unless otherwise told by this special feature. He's running! Finally! He moves like he's running for somewhere but has no destination. He's just running in circles and hops along randomly for no reason. His arms feel like they're shorting out, his brain is inside out, and he looks like a frog or a lizard. He hops again! He's halfway to the top! "This is embarrassing." Why is he running? He already tried it once, yet still has the foolish idea that running for some reason will get him somewhere. So fast! He's almost on the roof! The roof! He's almost there! Bam! His feet hit the roof, and he tears through it. Why is he on this roof and not the ground? "This is embarrassing." Why is he running on the roof? He hops onto the ground, and rolls off down into the hill. So fast! The hill has more stuff than the surface. The hill is bigger! "This is embarrassing." Why is he running down the hill? He hops to the bottom of the hill. Why is he on the bottom of the hill and not the ground? "This is embarrassing." Why is he hopping? He hops over a garbage bin. "This is embarrassing." Why is he hopping? He hops over a garbage can. Why is he hopping? d41b202975
