file shredder's main feature is that it can shred multiple files at once, in a number of ways. the program can shred individual files, groups of files, and folders. the shredding process is quick and effective. files are shredded in three steps, and if the files are encrypted, the encrypted files can be recovered. in the past, the only way to get rid of obsolete or unwanted files was to trash them, whether or not you had permission to do so, or to enlist the help of a trusted friend. if files were deleted, they were permanently gone. this included all the files on your hard drive (even the ones on external storage devices like usb drives or cds). when files are in a relatively simple format (such as plain text) there are many tools available online to perform a simple text-based search for files. you may also be able to use an online search engine to find an appropriate document shredder. if you have a lot of documents to search through, however, it may be better to use an offline approach, perhaps one that you can use on a removable drive. in the next section, we'll cover the basics of some of the tools you can use to locate files online and to search for documents in general. many people who are interested in reducing their paper use are using scanners to scan their paper documents into electronic files and then sending those files to online storage sites, such as google drive or dropbox. most of these online storage sites also allow the online users to share files with friends and colleagues. users can create links to their files or upload them to a favorite social network or other online site. scanners, e-mail, and social networks make it easy for users to share, send, and receive documents. 5ec8ef588b
