Hytera Dmr Programming Software 13

The Hytera TD580 is a very simple to operate DMR radio, however it does lack some of the basic features that you would find on more capable DMR transceivers. It is certainly not a broadcast ready radio. But if you are looking for a simple DMR radio that costs less than your average portable receiver, then the TD580 will fit the bill quite nicely. The TD580 is compatible with the following programming languages. Additional codes for the Hytera PD482 can be found under the dealer page . The Hytera TD580 is another feature-packed radio that provides excellent audio and dual band reception, allowing voice and data communication with a range of up to 275 meters. In addition to the traditional rectangular shape, the TD580 has a unique wedge form. It is a convenient size and gives the user all the functions they need right at the thumb tip. Users can adjust the caller ID indication type in the external programming menu of the TD580. When set to display the caller ID, the caller ID information is shown on the OLED display.

For example, one of the options is show all the caller ID information including call waiting, extended, distant, location, and message.

When connected to a computer through the USB cable, the display information can be accessed by the user. Hytera have included the codes for all the screen information that you can program. All of these codes and information can be accessed via the menu in the radio. In the programming menu, the user can program the mobile phone number or the DMR station number that is shown on the LCD display of the TD580. Using the DMR programming menu, the user can program a phone number, similar to the way that they programmed a mobile phone number.
