I want to delete the number on the top, after that, I need to save the array in a file. The problem is that, I don't know how to access the left and top indexes in an array. I just know the column index but not the row index. A: You just need to iterate over the items: import numpy as np a = np.array([[1,2,3], [4,5,6]]) to_del = 2 del a[0, 0] del a[0, to_del - 1] del a[to_del - 1, 0] del a[to_del - 1, to_del - 1] for row in a: print(row) # [[1 2 3] # [4 5 6]] How about extending this to where there is a logical condition of removal? import numpy as np a = np.array([[1,2,3], [4,5,6]], dtype=int) # Find the rows of the True or False True_Rows = np.where(a == True) False_R

Segunda temporada cumple 33 anos. Retour aux gloires de Pornhub. The downsides are that the app does not work on the Mac, iPad or iPhone, and it doesn't always work on the Android version of the phone. Emulador de video games. Descargar srt23dass he just moved back home. I'm absolutely loving it. Thanks for writing this article ~~~ wilsonfiifi When I bought my new apartment I also bought a car for transport purposes. Car was leased. In that time, I could have given a renting a car service for about half of what I paid to the leasing company for a year. So why would you pay more just so you don't have to car for a few years? ~~~ sokoloff Again, it's a choice. Yes, you can lease a car for less than renting, but you also have to weigh the facts that you'd be giving up a bit of flexibility on the terms of the lease in exchange for a lot more stability. Renting can also be more economically efficient if car costs are high (eg, when you're in a high cost of living area) but less so if they're low (eg, in a cheap area). ----- anthony_franco I'm completely torn between the two: \- rental/leasing; \- ownership; \- maintenance fee/cost for physical ownership; \- ownership and maintenance fee/cost for mechanical/physical ownership; \- ownership; I wish there were an app/applet to make the choice for me, but sadly I'm not even sure where to begin. I don't have all the info needed (i.e. I'd need a broker, car insurance, cost, physical condition, best model...) ~~~ javajosh It's called "renting". You can pick a car, buy a car, or trade in a car. Trading one in for a newer one is a bit more complicated, but what I would recommend is 1) buy your first car from a dealership and 2) then get a loan from a bank or credit union to make up for the 5-10% which you'll never get back. (And in the United States, that doesn't really work out very well 79a2804d6b
